

ISyberWorks e-Learning Podcasts: Episode #4: e-Learning Accessibility For Training Managers and Human Resource Professionals, Part 1

Waltham, Massachusetts –December 7, 2006

SyberWorks, a leader in custom e-Learning Solutions and the Learning Management System industry, today announces the next episode in their e-Learning Podcast Series, “e-Learning Accessibility For Training Managers and Human Resource Professionals, Part 1.”

Dave Boggs, CEO of SyberWorks states:

“I am excited about the upcoming e-Learning Podcasts we have scheduled over the next few months. Our series on e-Learning Accessibility is focused on providing pertinent information on this topic to training managers and human resource professionals, to help them better manage their web-based training programs. Given the recent activity in the courts with the ruling in 'Target vs the National Federation of the Blind', the UK's announcement of PAS 78 guidelines, and other developments in the world of accessibility, the issue of e-Learning Accessibility will grow in importance over the next few years.”

Dave Boggs continues, “The series will be composed of a set of interviews with Al Lemieux, Senior e-Learning Developer at SyberWorks on e-Learning Accessibility. Mary Kay Lofurno, Director of Marketing at SyberWorks, narrates the series. In the first segment, they will be covering some background on the Americans with Disabilities Act, Section 508, and the World Wide Web Accessibility guidelines.”
